We believe in a different approach to making juice. The cold-pressed way. It's our way of helping protect the flavor and nutrients of the fruits and vegetables we bring into our juicery. No added colors, sweeteners or flavors nature didn't put there. Just our favorite produce, tasting as close to fresh-picked as possible.

Many juices on the market have been heat-pasteurized, which may affect the natural flavors of the ingredients. We cold-press our juice using High Pressure Processing (HPP). We keep our fruits and vegetables chilled from the moment they enter our juicery to the moment you take your first sip.

Using as much locally sourced produce as possible, once picked, our fruits and vegetables are cleaned, squeezed and pressed. Once we have crafted our juice blends and bottled them, we apply pressure equal to five times that found in the deepest part of the ocean to help protect flavor, color and nutrients while ensuring safety.

Expanding on our existing portfolio and delivering our commitment to provide accessible nutrition, Evolution Fresh recently introduced a new line of 11 fl. oz. cold-pressed juices, available in six new flavors at grocery stores nationwide. The new 11 fl. oz. line is an approachable size for those wanting to try cold-pressed juice for the first time or those consumers seeking a nourishing beverage to pair with their lunch or afternoon snack. Evolution Fresh spent two years developing this new line, each juice is designed to deliver more than one cup towards the combined daily recommended intake of fruits and vegetables without added sweeteners, artificial flavors or colors.

Availability and Pricing

Our Evolution Fresh™ 11 fl. oz. juices are available nationwide where groceries are sold, in locations like: Shaw's, Ahold, Meijer and select Albertson's. Our original 15.2 fl. oz. cold-pressed juices are available in more than 6,000 grocery retailers including Whole Foods Market, 7,200 Starbucks® stores and in four company-operated Evolution Fresh™ retail locations.
